Taboo

Thursday, Ten, 8.45pm

Harley Breen (pictured) has set himself a mammoth challenge in this series: to find the funny in issues such as terminal illness, racism and physical disability. Tonight, the comedian meets four people who are living with mental illness. Breen spends a week in a picturesque holiday home with Casey, a 27-year-old single mum who has battled anorexia; Trent, who suffered a near-fatal brain injury that left him with anxiety and epilepsy; retired paramedic Don, who suffers from PTSD; and Jessie, who deals with bipolar, OCD and alcoholism. The issues are confronting, but it's illuminating, life-affirming viewing in which Breen more than rises to the occasion.

Mission Galapagos

Saturday, SBS, 7pm, G

The Galápagos Islands are one of the greatest treasures of the natural world. A visit should be top of everyone's dream holiday list. But for now viewers can make do with this Sunday night treat – a three-parter showing every episode of this doco back-to-back. So sit back and relax as host Liz Bonnin (pictured) explores the spectacular archipelago with a team of scientific experts. The journey begins on the west side, at the most volcanically active islands. After a dip underwater, the group moves south to visit the oldest islands and see the impact humans have had on their pristine wilderness. Covering 1000km all up, this is an unmissable opportunity to learn more about one of the planet's most mysterious wonders.

Climate Crisis: Make The World Greta

Sunday, SBS Viceland, 6.10pm

Climate change has become a hot button issue around the world, although that level of interest has not necessarily translated into action from the political class. That inaction was not good enough for Swedish 15-year-old Greta Thunberg, who took matters into her own hands and began protesting outside Swedish parliament in 2018. This documentary follows how the movement that Greta began grew to a worldwide phenomenon, as she and other organisers worked towards a global protest in 2019, the largest climate strike in history, with more than 1.5 million students taking up the cause.
